

M5 External Music Lessons Policy (Safeguarding Alternative Provision)

Introduction and Context

The Purcell School provides world-class specialist tuition in music to students through the employment of an exceptionally well-qualified and experienced staff. All first study lessons, and the vast majority of subsidiary study lessons, are given in school. Should the need ever arise for 1st study teaching to take place outside school in future, an RA for offsite provision must be completed by the Head of Department, and it is attached below.

A small number of students also choose to access provision offered at junior conservatoire departments on Saturdays, including 2nd study lessons.

Occasionally a student may receive instrumental tuition from a specific teacher who is neither employed by the school nor a conservatoire junior department. An example might be where the school does not currently employ a teacher of that instrument, or if a 2nd or 3rd study 'hobby' is to be continued with a teacher at home at the weekends or in the holidays. Each request must be assessed on its own merits and the school must satisfy itself that it is in the best interest of the student to study with the proposed teacher. In such cases, the school must then satisfy itself that adequate measures are in place to protect the safety and wellbeing of the student.

Where a student has a teacher in school, it is not permitted to have lessons with a second teacher at home or online.

Safeguarding & Health and Safety

Assessing potential risks for students, wherever they are learning, is an important part of safeguarding. Whilst KCSIE defines regulated activity, it makes no specific reference to Alternative Provision.

Facilitating Alternative Provision for 2nd/3rd Study or 'Hobby' Activities Organised by Families

- The School must endeavour to establish that, where lessons have been organised by parents, the parents have demonstrated due diligence with regard to the safety and suitability of the provision. HPs, instrumental teachers, and/or HoDs will raise concerns should they arise.
- The School must use its best endeavours to manage the risks inherent in teaching situations over which it has no control, for example where arrangements are made by parents at the weekend.
- Lessons should not take place online while the student is at school.

Monitoring Learning and Teaching

- The School maintains regular contact with directors of junior conservatoires in order to assess the quality and appropriateness of the teaching and the suitability of the provision.
- For 2nd/3rd study and 'hobby' lessons outside these institutions, this process is less rigorous, because they are generally organised by the parents. Musical and pastoral staff share responsibility for monitoring any concerns.

Record Keeping

The school is aware that any day student and weekly boarder may attend musical activities organised by parents at the weekend. There is always a risk that the School is completely unaware of such activities, or that parents modify the arrangements that the School believes to be in place, for example in regard to travel and chaperoning. The School contacts all parents at least once, asking for information on any regular external musical activity, and keeps a record of all declarations. The risk of the School's ignorance of activities changing on an ad hoc basis is mitigated by HPs maintaining good conversations with parents, students and the Music Department. Parents are regularly reminded to update the School of any changes to provision through newsletters and communication from the Principal.

Where boarding students access any extracurricular activities online from School, it is for the Houseparents to liaise with parents/guardians about the suitability of the proposed activity.
